

ROW WITH BOARD STARTED WILSON FOR PRESIDENCY

Man Who Trained Him as Boy of 17 Tells Ad Club Men some Secrets: Curtis Speaks

A surprise was sprung on the Ad Club today at its regular weekly luncheon when Mr. Goldie of Princeton University was called upon to speak. Mr. Goldie was physical director of the university when President Wilson was a boy of 17. He remembers the president as a very earnest college youth, who early became a master in the use of pure English in all his conversation.

That a slight misunderstanding between Woodrow Wilson while president of Princeton, after 10 years' tenure of that office, and the board of trustees, caused him to aspire to the gubernatorial office in the state of New Jersey, came as a big surprise to all present.

Mr. Goldie said that though he himself is a Republican, acquaintance with the president all these years as college youth, professor, and then president of the university, led him to hope that the people of the United States would return him to the White House for another term of four years. Renewal invitation.

Interspersing his remarks with a number of stories that suggested the belief that the veteran publisher of the Saturday Evening Post and Ladies' Home Journal is himself the chief contributor, or else the most studious reader of the "That Reminds Me" column in the Journal, Cyrus H. K. Curtis renewed his invitation for Honoluluans to visit Philadelphia.

Mr. Curtis, after saying that he considers that the climate and the scenery of Honolulu and its environs make this the most beautiful place in the world to live in, appealed to Hawaii's inherent hospitality on behalf of tourists who are headed this way in ever increasing numbers. "You want at least a couple more first-class hotels, and then advertise them in my papers. If you do, the hotels will pay well and you'll all make profit of the venture."

Honolulu in its present hotel situation reminds me of a city in the West, which had always managed to care for all comers until a certain convention occurred. Two commercial travelers who made frequent stops there were unable to get accommodations. All the billiard tables, bowling alleys and such places were occupied, and finally the hotel keeper bethought him of the church across the street, for which he held the keys. Urging his friends to keep the matter secret, he was startled a few minutes later to hear the church bell tolling. "What do you want," he asked them, as soon as he could reach the church. "Service," they replied. "Send two dry martinis to per 213."

Mr. Wells of New York was next called upon. Mr. Wells visited Honolulu for several months about 40 years ago. His remarks were full of comparisons between the charming, easy-going, picturesque Honolulu of that day without sidewalks or paved streets, and the bustling cosmopolitan city of today.

Mr. Merriam of Fitchburg, Massachusetts, told the members of the Ad Club that Honolulu was indebted to Fitchburg, Mass., for its Ad Club president, who got his early newspaper training in that city. W. R. Farrington responded that he was indebted to Fitchburg not only for his early newspaper training but for the fact that attendance at meetings of the Merchants' Association of Fitchburg gave birth in him to the ideals of civic and commercial righteousness that enabled him to organize the old Merchants' Association in Honolulu and later the Ad Club.

A birthday oration was given by Mr. Robert Jewers, today being his eightieth birthday, and additional lease of 20 years' life was voted him by the club.

Charles R. Frazier was appointed chairman of the "On to Philadelphia" committee to attend the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world in that city June of this year.

The Kamehameha Girls' school orchestra led by Miss Nollies, musical instructor of the school, sang several selections in Hawaiian and English.

STEVEN CASES PLACED BEFORE JUDGE STUART

Because he does not wholly agree with the statute under which the defendant was arrested, Circuit Judge Ashford today transferred to Circuit Judge Stuart the four cases against O. A. Steven, who is charged with acting as an immigrant agent without a license.

When arraigned this morning Mr. Steven pleaded not guilty to all four charges. The prosecution stated that all persons mentioned in the complaints are needed as witnesses and, fearing that they were to leave Honolulu tomorrow, asked for an order binding them over until such a time as they could be heard. The court transferred the cases without acting on the motion.

A hearing of the cases was to be had in Circuit Judge Stuart's court this afternoon.

Duty to Aid Says Nurse From Front

MRS. GENEVIEVE RAWAK.

"As long as the war lasts it is our duty as neutrals to help the people who are suffering from its ravages," says Mrs. Genevieve Rawak, former nurse in the war hospitals at the front, "and it is with this feeling that I am holding the afternoon dance next Saturday."

Mrs. Rawak says that every cent given in the cause will do good. Posters are out now announcing the dance, which is a benefit performance for the relief of Belgian and French refugees. Tickets may be secured at the Young Hotel or from Mrs. Rawak. The performance will be given on the Young roof garden.

The tickets which will entitle holders to cake and tea sell for $1 each. One of the features of the afternoon will be the distribution of six beautiful paintings by Jean Van Brock, which he donated for the work of relief. This is a part of the world wide movement forwarded by Anna de Bretteville Spreckels among neutral countries.

PUBLIC LINKS AT KAPIOLANI PARK IS LATEST PLAN

Honolulu will have a public golf links at Kapiolani Park if the present proposal of the Hawaii Promotion Committee is passed on favorably by the Chamber of Commerce.

The members believe that with a 9 hole course at Kapiolani Park Honolulu will receive many tourists who will have an opportunity to play their favorite game near the beach and close to the big hotels in that vicinity. With the Oahu Country Club at one end of the city and a public golf links at the other end, Honolulu would be well supplied with golf.

According to the members there are hundreds of visitors to the city who enjoy the game, and most of these are men of wealth who remain here for some time. The golf players are boosters in every respect, and the proposal was made that the opportunity for the establishment of a course is now and the matter will be taken up with the Chamber of Commerce.

Upon the return from the trip to Hawaii, George Angus, a member of the committee, took up the project of establishing a golf course below the Volcano House on Hawaii. Mr. Angus is a member of the greens committee of the Oahu Country Club and is familiar with the golf situation.

He stated that should a 9 or 18 hole course be laid out below the Volcano House many tourists would remain at Kilauea for an indefinite period, as there are many golfers who like nothing better than to play the game the year round. Members of the Promotion Committee looked over the ground during their stay on the Big Island and all were satisfied that a link could be planned in that vicinity. It is expected that the preliminary plans for the establishment of a course will be made in the near future.

MOLASSES KINGS LATEST PRODUCT EXAMINER FINDS

Coast Newspaper Declares the Sticky Substance Helps Make War Munitions for Europe

"Molasses Kings" are as numerous in and around Honolulu as the scions of native monarchy," says the San Francisco Examiner of recent date. That newspaper then continues:

"Heretofore, in pre-war days, it did not pay to produce molasses, and the Scotch plantation owners and managers centralized their efforts in transporting the ultimate drop of such a rare matter in the cane into raw sugar, because there were more 'bawbees' to the pound in that particular form of concentrated sweetness."

"But war has wrought a wonderful change. Today, molasses is selling at the highest price for 40 years, and every cane grower is striving to make as much molasses as possible, and 'get in' on some of the easy money."

"Why this is so was explained yesterday by a sugar baron, fresh from the islands. From molasses is made alcohol; from alcohol, acetone; from acetone, cordite; from cordite the by-products of the battlefields—the dead, maimed, halt and blind."

WIND BLOWS AT 44 MILES PER HOUR IN NIGHT

Gale Ruins Many Trees Puts
Out Lights and Shreds
Delicate Vegetation

Blowing down electric light wires, snapping large tree limbs, tearing the leaves of banana plants to tatters, destroying blossoms on avocado trees and doing other damage, the wind which blew vigorously yesterday rose to a howling gale last night and attained a maximum velocity of 44 miles an hour at 9:35 and again at midnight.

At 9:45 this morning the wind was still blowing strongly, at the rate of 35 miles an hour, according to Meteorologist A. M. Hamrick of the United States weather bureau's local office. The wind velocity at 9 o'clock this morning was 36 miles.

"The average wind velocity from noon yesterday to 3:30 this morning has been 28 miles an hour," says Mr. Hamrick. "Through last night it averaged close to 30 miles an hour, and it is still blowing from the northeast, as it did yesterday."

The barometer is high and rising, which, together with the wind direction, makes the local forecast believe that no heavy rainstorm is in prospect. The barometer stood at 30.09 at 8 o'clock this morning, several degrees higher than yesterday.

Rain fell last night, 12 of an inch being precipitated. This makes the total for March to date 6.43 inches, 15 times as much as the entire rainfall for March, 1915, which was only .42 of an inch.

Large trees on the grounds of private residences along the mauka side of Lumailai street suffered from the wind. In a residence at the north-west corner of Lumailai and Victoria streets a large tree was split in half by the wind and fell upon the lawn.

On Beretania street, near the pumping station, a tree was blown across the trolley tracks about midnight, but it was removed by daylight this morning. No other trouble was experienced by the Rapid Transit Lines, Manager C. G. Ballentine reported today.

The Hawaiian Electric Company and Mutual Telephone Company reported only minor troubles from the gale and said service was normal by an early hour this morning.

GREAT NORTHERN AGENTS REFUSE ANY MORE CARGO

That they have refused between 600 and 700 tons of freight because the steamer already has all the cargo she can carry, was stated today by the local agents, Fred L. Waldron Ltd., who said the palatial liner will take out close to 2000 tons measurement when she sails at 11 o'clock Thursday night for San Francisco.

The liner will have 46,000 cases of canned pine as a part of her record cargo of outgoing freight. Two trips ago she took out 1704 tons measurement, the record down to the present time.

Passengers going out will also be capacity, the agents said today. All the second-cabin staterooms are sold out, and the first-cabin accommodations are nearly all filled. There are more than 100 steerage tickets actually sold and paid for.

Sweden has arranged with England for the importation of more coal, in return for which Sweden will export certain articles to Great Britain. The bodies of 55 victims of the snowslide in the Salzburger Alps were buried in one great tomb at Bischofsben, Salzburger, Germany.

Thomas' remains are being interred in Nuuanu cemetery.

The body of Mr. Thomas was brought to Honolulu Monday on the Great Northern from the mainland. Mrs. Thomas and her son, Will Thomas, returned with the remains.

Kemp Expects To Stay When Huber Comes

Judge S. B. Kemp, now assistant district attorney here.

That Judge Samuel B. Kemp undoubtedly will continue in office here as assistant district attorney if S. C. Huber of Tama, Iowa, is appointed head of the office, is the opinion of local federal officials.

"I suppose I will remain, unless Mr. Huber has other plans," Mr. Kemp said today. "But as far as I know, however, I will continue as his assistant."

District Attorney Horace W. Vaughan, whose name has been sent to the senate as Judge Sanford B. Dole's successor, says he is almost certain that Mr. Kemp will be Mr. Huber's assistant, in case the latter is appointed.

TUG TOWS DRIFTING SCHOONER TO SAFETY

Late this afternoon the four-masted schooner James H. Bruce began dragging her anchors, or else lost them, and started drifting out to sea in the high wind from off shore.

The schooner was observed to be in distress by the pilots' lookout and the Matson tug Intrepid steamed out and towed the vessel back to safety.

REPEAT AT ABERDEEN UNDERGOING REPAIRS

That the lumber schooner Repeat is repairing at Aberdeen, Washington, is stated in a cable received today by Lewers & Cooke, her owners, in response to a query sent Astoria to determine whether the schooner had sailed for Honolulu, as reported a few days ago. The schooner left Astoria, but went to Aberdeen for repairs. Her owners say these will take about two weeks more.

OPENS FIGHT ON INSPECTION OF COAST VESSELS

the present system, Mr. Thurston argued that the ports of Hilo and Honolulu have been forced to be the target for unjust criticism by many tourists, and that at the present time the system in effect is "nothing more or less than a costing of noses."

In order that the subject be continued the members of the Hawaii Promotion Committee asked that more information on this point be secured, and authorized the secretary to ask Dr. F. E. Trotter, chief of the U. S. Marine Hospital, and Dr. J. S. B. Pratt, president of the Territorial Board of Health, to talk to the members of the committee on this subject at their next meeting.

"I don't quite understand Mr. Thurston's position in the matter," says Dr. F. E. Trotter, chief quarantine officer. "The work of inspection is done with more despatch at this port than anywhere else."

"It has always been a custom that, where ships are at sea for six days or more, they be inspected at the port of arrival. Galveston is not that far from New York and on the 'other hand' there are no disease prevalent in New York for which a ship might be quarantined. There is plague in San Francisco, as well as other diseases, and therefore it is necessary that passengers arriving here should be examined."

At the meeting this morning the members voted to ask the Chamber of Commerce to pass on the resolution of sending a delegate to the mainland to confer with the officials of the Great Northern in regard to keeping the Hill liner on the run to this port.

The resolution covered the point of a representative of the Hawaii Promotion Committee being the delegate who would confer with the executives of the Great Northern, and ascertain what guarantee they would ask to continue the steamer on the present run. The Chamber of Commerce was asked to empower the Hawaii Promotion Committee to send a representative to the mainland at once. The matter was referred to the members of the Chamber of Commerce who hold a meeting this afternoon.
